Dear Tomaso,

Thank you once again for your email and interest in CT Travel developments. Following consultation internally, as well as with our Partners, it has been determined that the majority of the additional information being requested by Privacy International within the letter relates to specific assistance and cooperation between the United Nations and its Member States and thus cannot be shared without the expressed consent of the Member States. I feel that it is important to note that through our discussions and exchanges last year, UNOCT together with our Partners have endeavored to provide comprehensive information on the Programme to Privacy International that is shareable. We would also invite you to continue to consult our quarterly newsletter that is publicly available to obtain updates on activities.

We would be happy to hold a follow-up call to discuss this and any other points you wish to raise. We remain of course amenable to continuing an open dialogue with Privacy International on CT Travel related developments that may be shared.

Many thanks for your understanding and looking forward to your return.

Kind regards and best wishes for a happy Easter,

Dear [redacted]

I hope this e-mail finds you well.

Since we last spoke, we have reviewed the information available on the UN Countering Terrorist Travel Programme, and we would like to request some additional information.

I have detailed it in the attached letter, to make it is easier for you to share with colleagues within UN OCT and partner organisations.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Tomaso
